THE foundation of the present library was laid in the year 1731, a period when Philadelphia afforded little assistance to the enquiries of the studious. A number of gentlemen having raised the sum of one hundred pounds by subscription, a small library was formed upon principles the best calculated to disseminate knowledge: the books were not, as in many of the public libraries of Europe, confined to the apartments, but the subscribers were allowed to carry them home for a reasonable space of time.

The plan soon became popular; accessions to the number of members took place, and the stock of books was annually increased by purchases at the company's expence, and liberal donations from persons both at home and abroad.

The then proprietaries of Pennsylvania appear to have taken a patriotic pleasure in the encouragement of the plan. Besides several valuable donations, they granted a charter of incorporation in the year 1742.

1742 JAN 4 A

A spirit of literary improvement made its way among all classes of people, and the philanthropy of the great and amiable character * who suggested the plan, was gratified by tracing the books as well into the hands of the opulent, with whom literature is sometimes no more than one of the ornaments of civil life, as among those to whom it renders a more substantial benefit. Letters, while they employ the leisure of the artist, reconcile him to his labor; by removing grosser relaxations they promote his health, while they enlarge his mind; and prolong his life, while they teach him to enjoy it.

The respectable and intelligent character of the latter class of people in Philadelphia and its environs, cannot be referred to a more probable cause, than the habits of reading promoted by this institution.

The great utility and success of this measure, occasioned the formation of other libraries upon similar principles. But as it appeared more conducive to the interests of literature, to be possessed of one large, than of several smaller collections of books, coalitions gradually took place among them, till the Amicable, the Association and the Union Companies were blended with the Library Company of Philadelphia, the title conferred by the charter.

Since this event, which took place in the year 1769, the members and the property of the company have continued to encrease; the former being now between five and six hundred in number. The number of volumes, at present, amounts to eight thousand, the selection of which, has in general been calculated to promote the more important interests of society. And the stock of books is continually encreased by occasional donations, annual importations and purchases of every American production of merit.

Some

* DOCTOR FRANKLIN.

Some valuable machines and apparatus for the purposes of natural philosophy, &c. and a variety of curious artificial and natural productions also belong to the company, and are deposited in their apartments. It was not thought necessary to insert the particulars of them in the present catalogue, but lists are in the possession of the Librarian, who attends to show them at stated times,* and the Directors, on proper occasions, permit the instruments to be made use of.

Besides the collection, the personal property consists of some monies at interest; the sales of shares, which since the year 1768, have been fixed at ten pounds, and the annual payment of ten shillings from each member.

A house and lot of ground which belonged to the Union Company; two lots of ground (one the generous donation of the late Thomas Penn, Esquire,) and several ground rents constitute the real estate.

The members hold the property as tenants in common, and dispose of their shares by will or deed; but the assent of the Directors, as well in such cases as in case of an original purchase, is previously necessary—a restriction early adopted, in order, as much as possible, to prevent improper persons from having access to a collection of a nature so liable to injury.

Ten Directors and a Treasurer are annually elected by the members: the Directors appoint a Secretary and a Librarian,—for the respective powers and duties of whom, the reader is referred to the charter and the subsequent laws and regulations.

* The present time, is on Saturday mornings, from ten till twelve o'clock.

and the seal of the company, containing the name of the person and the sum paid, the time when, and the account or use for which he paid it: of all which a record shall be made in the records of the said company. Which certificate shall entitle the person therein mentioned, to a share in the company's books, estate and effects, and to be deemed a member.

A Law for preserving a just equality among the members, and to prevent the inconveniences that may arise by any persons holding more than one share.

IT IS ENACTED, for the preservation of a just equality among the members of the Library Company, That no person being a member, and holding a share in the library, &c. shall grant, sell, or convey to any other member, or accept of a grant, bargain, sale, or other conveyance or assurance from any other member, of any share or shares in the books, estate, and effects of the said company; on penalty of forfeiting to the company such share or shares, so purchased, sold, granted, or conveyed.

No member shall sell his share to another member, &c.

Penalty.

No member to have more than one vote, &c.

AND if any member, as executor or administrator of another, or by any other means, come to have in his hands a plurality of shares, he shall not thereby be entitled to more than one vote at elections, or on any other occasion, nor have a right to take out more books at one time than any other member.

A Law

A Law for regulating elections of officers, and declaring their trust and duty.

FOR the better preservation of order and government among the Library Company of Philadelphia, and in the use, application and management of the monies, library and effects of the said company, IT IS ENACTED, That the members of the said company shall, in person, or by proxy, annually attend at the place of election in the city of Philadelphia, on the first Monday of the month of May, in every year; and that as many as so meet, and appear to be duly qualified, shall proceed to the choice of a person of the company, to be the company's Treasurer, and ten other persons of the company, to be Directors for the year next ensuing, and so from year to year. The place of election to be agreed on by the Directors of the current year, and notified by their Secretary, twenty days at least before the election, by printed advertisements. The electors to chuse by written tickets, each containing the names of the ten persons voted Directors, and the name of the person voted Treasurer; and those who shall thereupon appear to have a majority of votes, shall be the company's Treasurer, and the Directors, respectively, for the year ensuing. That the said Directors shall, and are hereby required and empowered, to nominate some fit person of the company to be their Secretary for the year ensuing, who shall preside and collect the votes at the election aforesaid, and shall faithfully enter, in a book to be kept for that purpose, the names of the said electors, and the number of the names of the candidates, according to the tickets.

Members to meet on the first Monday in May.

of accounts concerning the same, and the company's papers in his keeping, unto his successor in the said office, or such other person or service as the Directors, for the time being, shall order and appoint, and not otherwise; and that he will observe, do, and execute all other things as the company's Treasurer aforesaid, according to the sense and true meaning of this law.

Directors
to choose the other officers, &c.

Directors,
their power
and duty.

THAT all officers and servants belonging to the company, other than their Treasurer, shall be in the choice, and under the order and direction of the Directors, who shall be accountable for their fidelity, and may displace them, and appoint others, as often as they shall think fit: which Directors shall have the power of calling general meetings, when they judge it necessary for the interest of the company, and shall cause due and public notice to be given of the occasion and design or purpose of such meetings; and shall nominate some discreet member to preside therein, and regulate the debates thereof: they shall also have the disposal of the monies paid to the Treasurer to and for the use and service of the library; they shall have the choosing of books for the library; the renting a house or place for the service of the library; the furnishing the same with presses, shelves, and other things necessary and fit; the keeping and power of affixing the seal of the company; which seal shall be and remain the same that is now used and affixed to this law, until another shall be appointed; the lending of books; the appointing securities for the return of the books to the library, and the prices of the loans; the printing and dispersing of catalogues; the admission of new members, under the limitations and conditions now or hereafter hereafter to be established by the laws of the company; the settling the accounts with the company's Treasurer; the payment of house-rent, servants and officers wages, and all other incident charges belonging to the company. Moreover the Directors are hereby invested with a discretional power to make suitable returns (on behalf of the company) unto such benefactors as shall honor them by donations or otherwise.

AND for the more orderly execution of the duty and trust belonging to the said Directors, they are hereby required to meet once a month, at the place where the library shall be kept, or some other fit place in the said city of Philadelphia, to confer and conclude concerning the matters hereby committed to them. In every of which meetings of the Directors aforesaid, seven of their number met shall be a quorum, capable to consult, confer, and conclude of, and upon all matters appertaining to the Directors, according to the laws and constitutions of the company: and whatever six of the number so met shall so conclude, shall be deemed and taken for and as the resolution of the Directors for the time, and accordingly entered in their minutes.

Directors to meet monthly.

Seven of them a quorum.

THAT the charter granted to the said company shall be deposited in the library, for the inspection and perusal of all persons concerned; who shall also have recourse to the journals of the Directors, the minutes and entries of their Secretaries, with the Treasurer's accounts, and all other books and papers belonging to the company; and may, if the Directors think fit, take copies thereof.

Charter to be deposited in the library.

(Altered by a law passed the 13th. of March, 1769.)

A Law for recording the laws of the company, and the names of such persons as shall hereafter be admitted members thereof, &c.

TO THE END that the laws of the Library Company of Philadelphia may be securely preserved, and that every member of the said company may have opportunity of being fully acquainted therewith; It is hereby enacted by the said company, that all laws passed at the general meetings of the said company, pursuant to their charter, shall be recorded in a large bound book, of good paper, which shall be safely kept in the library for the perusal of the company; and that every law so

A Law for ascertaining the fines for neglecting the yearly payments.

WHEREAS by a law of the Library Company of Philadelphia, entitled, "A Law for ascertaining the fines for neglecting the yearly payments," it is, amongst other things, enacted, "That if any member or members of the said company shall neglect to pay his or their yearly payments, for any time not exceeding three months, from and after the first Monday in May, that he or they shall pay the sum of Five Shillings as a fine, together with the said Ten Shillings;" which said law has been found inconvenient and too strict:

It

It is therefore hereby enacted, by the Library Company of Philadelphia aforesaid, That if any member make his yearly payment within ten days after the said first Monday in May, the same shall be excepted without a fine; but if any member neglect to pay the yearly sum aforesaid, on the said first Monday in May, and for ten days afterwards, and for any time longer, not exceeding three months from and after the said first Monday in May, such member shall pay to the Treasurer for the time being, ^{Fines settled.} the fine of Five Shillings, together with his said yearly payment. And for neglecting as aforesaid for any time above three months, and not exceeding six months, the fine of Ten Shillings. And for neglecting as aforesaid for any time above six months, and not exceeding nine months, the fine of Fifteen Shillings. And for neglecting as aforesaid for any time above nine months, and not exceeding twelve months, the fine of Twenty Shillings. Any thing in the said recited law to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

Enacted and published the 13th. of March, 1769.

FRANCIS HOPKINSON, Secretary.

the members of the Union Library Company.

WHEREAS it is conceived that great advantages may arise to the public, as well as to the individual members, by a union of the Library Companies aforesaid. BE IT ENACTED by the Library Company of Philadelphia, that their Directors for the time being, shall have full power and authority to admit the members of the Union Library Company; and that each member so admitted, shall, by virtue thereof, be entitled to an equal share of all the estate both real and personal, belonging to the said Library Company of Philadelphia, in common with their other members; and shall receive accordingly certificates thereof. Provided always, That, previous thereto, the said Union Library Company do assign over and convey all their estate, both real and personal, to the said Library Company of Philadelphia, and deliver possession thereof to the Directors for the time being; subject nevertheless to all such contracts heretofore made and now subsisting between the said Union Library Company and any of their members, as the said Directors shall deem proper and expedient.

Enacted and published the 13th. of March, 1769.

FRANCIS HOPKINSON, Secretary.

A Law

A Law for settling the annual payments and fines of the Library Company of Philadelphia.

(Passed the first of February, 1780. Obsolete.)

A Law to enable the Directors of the Library Company of Philadelphia, to purchase a lot of ground in the city of Philadelphia, to erect a building thereon for the use of the institution, and for other purposes therein mentioned.

IN order to accommodate the company with a lot of ground, and a convenient building for the uses of the library, IT IS ENACTED by the Library Company of Philadelphia, That the Directors shall have power and authority to purchase a lot in the city of Philadelphia, on ground rent, on the best terms they can procure, and to cause to be executed, on behalf of the company, a proper counterpart of the deed to be received for the said ground.

empowered to purchase a lot

THAT the Directors shall have power to contract for materials and workmanship, and to cause to be erected a suitable building, with cellars, the said building to be two stories high, and of a size sufficient to accommodate and serve the purposes of the library, having regard therein to a gradual increase of books, and other articles there to be deposited.

And erect a building.

THAT in order to defray the expence of the said building, the Directors shall endeavor to make an addition to the number of the members, by disposing of shares, and having procured one hundred new members, they may proceed

proceed on the work, and may appropriate the monies now due, and becoming due, and belonging to the company, as well as the cash in the hands of the Treasurer, reserving enough for the current expences of the library. And the Directors are hereby empowered to grant, bargain and sell for the highest price they can obtain, and by deed or deeds, under the common seal of the company, convey and assure all or any part of the real estate, belonging to the company, and to appropriate the monies arising from the said sales to the purposes aforesaid.

Directors
empowered to sell the real estate belonging to the company

And part of the lot which they may purchase.

It is hereby further enacted, That the Directors for the time being, may sell or let out on ground rent for ever, and by deed or deeds, under the common seal of the company, convey and assure such part of the lot they may purchase, as they may judge proper.

Enacted at a general meeting, held pursuant to public notice, on Monday the first day of June, 1789.

W. RAWLE, Secretary.

and no greater number, unless on hire, or so connected as to be otherwise useless. Such persons, however, who who reside at the distance of seven miles or upwards, are permitted to have books one week longer than the above mentioned times. For all books so lent, he shall take a note, payable to the company, for double the value, as high as he can estimate, of the book or set of books to which they belong, conditioned to return the same, undefaced, within the time above mentioned; at the expiration of which (unless application has been made by another member for the same books, and the Librarian requested to take a memorandum thereof) the borrower may, on producing the book to the Librarian, renew his note for the like time.

III. Every person, not being a member, who shall hire a book, &c. shall first give a note for double the value thereof, in the same manner, and be subject to the same regulations, as a member; and shall also deposit, as security, in the hands of the Librarian, double the value of such book or books; but if the book or books should belong to a set, then such person shall deposit treble the value of the volume or volumes which he shall so take out, and shall pay, for the use of the library, for

Folios one shilling,	} per week, and no smaller sums although the books may be returned within the week.
Quartos nine pence,
Octavos and Duodecimos
fix-pence

IV. Every member or other person who shall neglect to return the book or books, within the time specified in his note, shall, for such neglect, pay to the Librarian, for the use of the library, (besides the hire, where the book is not taken out by virtue of a share) four-pence for each time the library is afterwards opened for letting out books: and if not returned, undefaced, within one month from the expiration of the time limited in the note, the fines and hire accruing thereupon shall be doubled; and if not so returned within three months from the same period, the note or deposit money shall be forfeited to the company.

V. Books returned are to be delivered into the hands of the Librarian, to be examined whether damaged or not.

VI. No person from whom any hire or forfeiture is due, or who hath damaged any book, shall be permitted to have another book till satisfaction be made.

VII. If a member, and one who is not a member, should apply for the same book at the same time, the member shall have the preference.

VIII. A member may take out on hire, without a deposite, as many books in value for which his share in the library shall, by the Librarian, be deemed a sufficient security, on the same terms, in other respects, as persons who are not members.

IX. The Librarian shall furnish the Directors, at each monthly meeting, with an account of the fines and forfeitures which have accrued during the preceding month.

X. The Librarian is to conform to the instructions of the Directors with regard to such books as, from their scarcity and value, are to be let out only on certain conditions, or not at all.

XI. No person, whether a member or not, is to lend the book or books he borrows to any person out of his dwelling-house.

ADVERTISEMENT.

THE inconvenient arrangement of the former CATALOGUES having been much complained of, as tending to prolong and perplex the enquiry after particular authors, and affording no general view of the different subjects contained in the library, the following plan was suggested, and it is hoped will be more satisfactory.

In conformity to the general delineation of human science, laid down by Bacon, and afterwards illustrated and enlarged by D'Alembert, the books have been divided into three classes, corresponding with the three great divisions of the mental faculties—Memory, Reason and Imagination.

It has been attempted to render the subdivisions of the several classes sufficiently ample, to combine only those which proceeded from a common source, and could not be separated without difficulty, and to adapt the arrangement rather to the science than the subject.

The arrangement will not, perhaps, escape censure, nor the books appear to have been always classed with propriety; but, it should be remembered, that little less than an universal acquaintance with them was competent to a task of the kind, which, although it required an uninterrupted dedication of time and talents, was to be executed by those on whom it was devolved, in the occasional intervals of other duties, with minds frequently wearied by other labors.

A number of the following volumes having been presented by the friends of the institution, the names of the donors are inserted; many, however, which have been omitted in the catalogue last published will not appear in the present one—a circumstance which was discovered too late to be remedied. The liberal bequests of the late William Logan, Esquire, are distinguished by the Italic letter L.
